Facebook for Small Businesses

Post Copy

Yes, it's big—over 1.25 billion members, and growing. But it's not the sheer size of Facebook that makes it interesting for small business owners; it's the probability that your audience, pet owners in your community, are participating on this busiest of all social networks. Facebook allows you to reach, connect and create deeper relationships with your customers by communicating the sort of information that demonstrates your clinic's expertise, knowledge and caring on a personal, one-to-one level—something no other marketing media can do.

The screenshot displays the BravoVets website interface. At the top, the navigation bar includes the 'BRAVOVETS' logo, a search bar, and links for 'Download product info', 'BRAVECTO RESOURCES', 'TRENDING TOPICS', 'SOCIAL TIPS', 'CALENDAR', and 'BRAVECTO'. A user is logged in as 'EMPIRE VET'. The main content area features a blog post titled 'Clean houses can have fleas and ticks' with a sub-header 'TRENDING'. The post text reads: 'Even the cleanest house can become home to fleas and ticks. Talk to us about how to prevent your castle from becoming anything but pristine.' A 'Share' modal is open, allowing sharing to Facebook and Twitter. The modal includes a character count for Twitter (140 / 140) and a 'Post now' checkbox. The background shows a 'SOCIAL TIPS' section titled 'PR AND YOUR CLINIC'.
